A 3D rendering of a hexagonal lattice structure, likely a carbon nanotube, showing a repeating pattern of hexagonal rings in a dark gray color. The structure is composed of a series of interconnected hexagonal rings, creating a cylindrical shape. The perspective is from a slightly elevated angle, looking down the length of the cylinder. The lighting highlights the edges of the hexagons, giving the structure a sense of depth and dimension.

A large, stylized digital number '8' is displayed in white against a dark blue background. The number is composed of several thick, white, angular segments that create a 3D, blocky appearance. The segments are arranged to form the characteristic shape of the digit '8'. The background is a solid, dark blue color.
